Capital punishment is not a very exciting subject, and yet it causes a good many people to lose their heads.

The rubber trust is capitalized at $50,000,000. It expects to bounce right along, and stretch out as much as necessary.

Governor Roosevelt, of New York, objects to policemen joining clubs. He thinks they have club business enough to attend to.

Dr. Depew says Hanna is a great leader. He is. Any Republican who can accumulate a several million campaign fund is "great."

Secretary Gage's optical penetration is improving. Some time ago he saw a deficit of $112,000,000; now he sees a deficit of $170,000,000 for this year.

A worsted mill combine is capitalized at $50,000,000. This is a scheme by which somebody is bound to be worsted before they are through with it.

Russell Sage's wife does the donating for his family. She contributes annually about $200,000 to charity, but the old man gets even by close economy.

Col., now Gen. Funston, who looms up so conspicuously in the Philippine racket, is of Virginia stock, and a cousin of Governor J. Hoge Tyler. His grandmother was a Hoge. Funston's parents moved from Virginia to Missouri and from that State to Kansas.

Two American Bridge building companies have just secured contracts, one to build a steel railway bridge in North Africa, the other for a steel railway bridge in India, and both competed against the world. Yet the tariff tinkers continue to play the tariff protection fraud.

A hungry goat in a Pennsylvania town ate a ten-dollar bill. The people of that town should be careful how they let their ten-dollar bills lay around loose, for a hungry goat will eat almost anything and would hardly be satiated with a $10 meal.

A Maine company organized for the purpose of building railroads and acquiring real estate, has a capital stock of $10,000, of which $80 has been paid in. It has a President and a Treasurer too, who from appearances will not be overtaxed in handling the funds.

LOCAL DOTS.

— There were sales of tar on the local market yesterday as high as $1.25 per barrel.

— The tug Alexander Jones, with three scows in tow, arrived at Key West, Fla., Monday, 8th inst., and sailed on Tuesday for Havana.

— The Wilmington graded schools will close on the 22d inst. There will be closing exercises at the Hemenway, Union and High Schools during that week.

— Yesterday's News and Observer published an excellent cut of Grand Treasurer Richard J. Jones, who is atttending the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., which is in session there this week and not at Fayetteville, as published in yesterday's Star.

— The Atlantic Yacht Club is now open to members every day of the week. The same efficient and accommodating keeper of the club house and grounds, Mr. W. F. Newton, who rendered such faithful service last season, is again on duty.

— Policeman Woebse, in response to a telephone message yesterday afternoon, went out to a store corner Seventeenth and Market streets, and arrested two colored women, who were engaged in an affray. They were tried by Justice Bornemann.

BEFORE MAYOR PRO-TEM. SPRINGER.

Cases Disposed of in the Municipal Court Yesterday Morning.

Joseph Lyman, the white man from Hub, N. C., and the negro, Robert Harris, arrested a few nights since on suspicion of having stolen a coil of hauser rope, were discharged by Mayor pro-tem. Springer for lack of evidence. As no one claimed the rope not even the man in whose possession it was found, it was stored away at the City Hall for identification by the owners. Ed. Graham, colored, for assault and battery with a deadly weapon, was committed to jail in default of $200 for his appearance at the June term of Criminal Court. He was crazy drunk Tuesday afternoon and made an assault on a number of berry pickers in Messrs. Wright and Westbrook's strawberry farm in the outskirts of the city. He was brought to the guard house by Policeman Guy.

Scipio Harris and Louis Nixon, the negroes arrested by Policeman Barden for gambling, were fined $10 each, in default of which they went below to serve a term on the streets.

Allen Johnson, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, was fined $5 and required to pay the costs.

Every Member Should Attend.

This afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, there will be a meeting of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, to take under consideration the matter of providing entertainment for the railway telegraph superintendents, who will meet here in national convention May 15th to 19th, inclusive. The members, of course, pay their hotel and other expenses, but it is the desire of the Chamber to accord to them some pleasant and creditable entertainment which will give the visitors as favorable an impression of the city and her people as possible. It is very important that every member of the Chamber who can should attend the meeting this afternoon.

Observed Half Holiday.

The Wilmington public schools observed a half holiday yesterday in honor of the Confederate dead. Just before noon Superintendent Blair formal the boys of the High school, the Heminway and Union school, 175 strong, in line two abreast, under command the officers of the various rooms, and marched down Market street to Fourth, and down Fourth to the High school building. They carried banners, and marched in time to the roll of the drum. They made quite a creditable appearance.

Marriage in the Country.

Miss Della Isabel Carney, of Harnett township, and Mr. Jno. W. Scott, of Wilmington, were quietly married at the residence of the bride's parents in the country yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Esquire J. M. McGowan officiating. The groom is and has been for some time a trusted and faithful employe of the Street Railway Company as a car conductor.

President McIver Here.

Dr. Charles D. McIver, president of the Greensboro Normal College, will spend to-day in the city, the guest of Superintendent Blair of the Graded Schools. He is en route to Salem, Sampson county, where he will deliver an address at the closing of the High School.

BEAUTIFUL ADDRESS.

OUR CONFEDERATE HEROES.

The Exercises at Oakdale Cemetery Very Successful—The Confederate Monument Appropriately Decorated. Large Attendance.

Memorial Day exercises at Oakdale cemetery at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the detailed programme for which was published in yesterday's Star, was quite successfully rendered.

There was a large attendance of people anxious to add another loving tribute to the memory of the valiant heroes who sacrificed their lives in the defence of the fair Southland in a cause which they believed to be right. The procession was formed much as outlined in yesterday's Star, except that the Second Regiment band did not attend, neither did the Wilmington Division Naval Reserves turn out.

The procession was led by the Wilmington Light Infantry under command of Captain Chas. H. White. They were uniformed in gray dress coats with epaulets, white pants and white helmets. They presented quite a handsome appearance.

The procession approached the Confederate monument with uncovered heads and in time to muffled drums.

When the various organizations had taken the places assigned to them in the square and the people gathered about at the most advantageous places for witnessing the ceremonies and listening to the speakers, the assemblage was called to order by Chief Marshal R. F. Hamme. The choir under the direction of Mr. A. S. Holden sung the Doxology followed by an eloquent and peculiarly appropriate prayer by the chaplain, Rev. Father Dennen, of St. Thomas Pro-Cathedral. The prayer was as followe:

Almighty and Everlasting God, the Preserver of souls and the Redeemer of the world, look favorably upon us, thy servants, who bow in humility before Thy Majesty and beg of Thee graciously to accept this homage which we offer in Thy name, to the memory of those heroes who gave up all for Thee and country. Keep alive in our hearts that spirit of patriotism which animated them to deeds of valor, for then is love of country sanctified and consecrated in our love for Thee. We thank Thee for the blessings showered upon us through Thy ever watchful Providence. We implore Thee to strengthen our beloved country in the bonds of true charity and concord, and to diffuse on all sides that spirit of peace that reigned on earth at the birth of Thy Divine Son. May Thy holy angels, as they ascend before Thy Eternal Throne bearing our acts of heartfelt devotion, return to us laden with Thy richest graces and choicest blessings. Amen.

Following the prayer was a sweetly rendered song, "Ever Fadeless be their Glory," by the memorial choir.

The Chief Marshal then introduced the orator of the day, Captain W. T. R. Bell, of Rutherfordton, who delivered one of the most beautiful and highly appropriate orations ever made on a memorial occasion.

Capt. Bell spoke for probably forty-five minutes, holding the attention of his hearers with unabating interest. He introduced his address with a beautiful tribute to that atribute of the soul which prompts mankind to cherish the memories of the heroic dead and the ennobling influences which are thus awakened and nurished.

Referring to the occasion and his purpose he said:

"I come through the invitation of the Daughters of the Confederacy, as an old Confederate to voice as best I can the feeling of gratitude, love and pride with which we gather about the graves of these, our fallen comrades, year after year, under woman's noble ministrations, each year as we take part in these services going back strenghtened by the tribute we have paid."

In referring to the meaning of the memorial services Captain Bell said that if those who sacrificed their lives in the cause of the Confederacy were traitors, or if they were even merely knightly crusaders or cavaliers, he and his hearers might well turn away with sickened soul. He declared that the struggle was not for the perpetuation of slavery, as was claimed by some, but for the right of each State to regulate its own domestic institutions.

"It was for this right that we fought, and fight we did as only a great and brave people can.

"And now for thirty-four years we have stood over the graves of our heroes for whom no nation on the earth weeps and over whom no banner waves. * * * We come to-day bold, brave and self-reliant, under the broad folds of the Star Spangled Banner, claiming every good and glory that comes of American independence."

The speaker, continuing, declared that the deeds of valor achieved by the Confederate soldier are in history to stay and insisted that a careful watch must be kept upon the histories placed in the hands of the children of the South to see that the cause and deeds of their fathers are fairly presented. He paid a glowing tribute to the character of the typical Confederate soldier, telling of how through four years of blood and carnage, as the world stood breathless, he blazed his way to glory, putting a perpetual seal of blood upon his faith in the cause for which he gave his life.

Success, the speaker declared, was not necessary to establish their greatness nor could defeat detract from their glory.

Referring to the devotion of ex-confederate soldiers to the Federal government, he declared that the record of no people in the United States could rival that of the confederate soldier in that respect. He referred particularly to their record at the outbreak of the war with Spain. How that may of those veterans who, by reason of age or disability from other causes, could not shoulder arms, brought their sons to their country's altar and bade them go and follow and defend her flag with their life's blood. He paid glowing tributes to Shipley, to Bagley, to Lieut. Blue, to Lieut. Anderson, to the host of boys from the Southland who stood behind the guns with Dewey at Manila and with Sampson and Schley at Santiago. He elicited a storm of applause by a stirring reference to the record of Gen. Joe Wheeler. This bringing together of the forces of the sections had, he said, served to effectually seal the sectional bonds not only of hands, but of hearts.

He referred appreciatively to the movement on the part of certain legislators to have the national authorities take charge of the Confederate cemeteries, declaring that this delicate duty was one which the people of the South must keep peculiar unto themselves.

Captain Bell brought his splendid address to a close with a beautiful reference to the Confederacy as a Troy, whose Illiad has not yet been written — how it rose, how it fell, how for four long years the Grecian chariots battered against its walls, how the men fought and the maidens and wives bound up their wounds and sent them back again to the front, how the change came and the propitious smiles of the Gods were turned away as though offended.

All this, he said, will yet be written. The heroic will go down the ages in strains sublime, and the world will be familiar with the story.

At the conclusion of Captain Bell's address Chief Marshal R. F. Hamme performed the saddest feature of the service; that of calling the Roll of Honor. And thereafter the memorial choir and assembled congregation sang "Soldiers of Christ, Arise."

The benedition was impressively pronounced by Father Dennen, and the people begin to disperse. In the meantime, the sunset call was sounded by Mr. R. D. Wescott, bugler for the Wilmington Light Infantry, and the military company fired a salute.

It was a few minutes past 6 o'clock when the exercises were concluded.

Successful Meetings.

Interest in the meetings being conducted in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium by Rev. Clarence B. Strouse, editor of the Religious Review of Reviews, is constantly increasing and very gratifying results are being realized. There was a large congregation last night, and twenty odd people, at the solicitation of the preacher, stood up, thus declaring their intention to accept Christ and lead a better life. There were fully as many on Tuesday night. Rev. Mr. Strouse's theme last night was the worship of anti-Christs. There will be a service at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and the usual lecture to night.

Recovered Stolen Property.

Capt. R. C. Orrell returned yesterday afternoon from Edenton, N. C., where he went to identify and recover his horse and buggy, which were stolen from him some time ago, particulars of which were published in the Star at the time. After paying the reward, he secured the horse and buggy and in order to save time and expense in bringing them across the country, sold the property to some local purchaser. The thief was not apprehended.

Hotel at Carolina Beach.

Major Jenkins, under whose management the hotel at Carolina Beach will be conducted this Summer, came up to the city on the steamer Wilmington last evening. ## THE SUPREME COURT.

Filed Three Opinions and Adjourned Yesterday for the Term.

CORPORATION COMMISSION.

Refused to Make Any Change in the New Fertilizer Rates—Agricultural Board. Memorial Day—Fusion Sheriff Jones Behind in Accounts.

[Special Star Correspondence.]

Raleigh, N. C., May 10.

It is now certain that the outgoing Fusion Sheriff, H. T. Jones, is behind in his accounts. The exact amount is not yet known, though the commissioners and their attorney have been at work on the books for a week. These are in such condition that the deputy from each township has been summoned to go over his part of the accounts and explain them to the commissioners. It is found that even by the sheriff's own statement he is behind. It is believed the amount will reach $10,000 or more. A year ago his insolvent account, allowed by the Fusion commissioners, amounted to $4,000. This year he presents an insolvent account of $6,800. His bond is said to be good. It is given in a Baltimore guaranty company, and with his sister as personal security.

The institution for the blind closed to-day and the trains were crowded with more than 300 pupils going home. The school for the Deaf, Dumb and Blind (colored) closed a week ago.

Supreme Court Adjourned.

The Supreme Court filed three opinions this afternoon and adjourned for the term. This is the first time in a great number of years that the court has completed its work before adjourning. Usually a number of opinions are left unwritten.

As the decision of the Supreme Court in the Agricultural Board case makes it certain that all the fusion officials in that department will lose their places when the board meets June 1st, they are already preparing to swoop down on Collector Duncan and demand places in the revenue service.

Memorial Day was quietly observed here. The State and other public offices were closed, and the banks observed it as a holiday.

[Special Star Telegram.]

Opinions Delivered.

Opinions were handed down by the Supreme Court to day as follows, after which the court adjourned sine die: State vs. Dixon, from Burke, reversed. Hutton, vs. Webb, from Burke, affirmed. Machine Company vs. Boggin, from Anson, per curiam, affirmed.

This morning Rev. J. L. Burns retired as keeper of the capitol, and C. C. Cherry, who was elected by the Legislature, assumed control.

The Corporation Commission to-day heard argument on exceptions to the new fertilizer rates and over-ruled them, refusing to make any change in the rate.

The committee having in charge the gun presented by the cruiser Raleigh to-day decided to put it in the State museum, as it can be better cared for there than anywhere else.

PICKPOCKETS AT CHARLESTON.

Employing Same Tactics On Trains to Re-Union As Used Here.

The Charleston News and Courier of yesterday says: "The reports are that the pickpockets have been doing a considerable business among the visitors. It appears that they have been doing most of their work on the trains. Yesterday morning, on the Southern train from Columbia, there were several regular pickpockets at work. It is said that they worked a systematic game. One of the crowd would call the Veterans to go into a certain car, and when the door was found to be locked the leader would break into the crowd, while the confederate on the ground would call to the party to go on and in this way there would be a congestion and men actually had their inside coat pockets robbed in these rushes. Among those on this particular train robbed were Messrs. E. E. Boon, Wm. Deal, Henry Steel and A. G. Clarkson. Several of the passengers had their tickets taken along with their money. It is quite likely that these pickposkets will try and work their game at the trains on the departure of the Veterans or in the street car crowds, so it will be well for everyone to look out for these crowds in particular, as well as for all other congestions, which are the blessings of the pickpockets.

NEW YORK TRUCK QUOTATIONS.

Strawberry Market Completely Demoralized—Prices Range from 5 to 9 Cents.

[Special Star Telegram.]

New York, May 10.—The strawberry market is completely demoralized, brought about by excessive receipts and the poor quality of those received. Late delivery by railroad has also had much to do with the demoralization of the market. Prices ranged to day all the way from five to nine cents per quart. There is a good inquiry for fancy stock but there is none here. The quotations for vegetables remain unchanged with good demand. J. & G. Lippmann.

BERRY GROWER'S COMPLAINT.

Garland, N. C., May 10, 1899.

The Morning Star, Wilmington, N. C.:

We would like to inquire through your columns why we cannot ship our berries by express? We have thought that shippers could ship by express any time they wanted to, but to-day here, after billing our berries by express the Express Company refused to take them, with no reasons whatever for doing so. ## PUTTING UP PRICES.

Greed is the inspiration of the trust idea. Monopoly is their corner stone, and therefore they seek to secure a monopoly, for having that they have consumers in their power, they can raise prices as high as they choose and the consumers must submit, for they cannot help themselves.

There is a class of trust organs which imagine that they can bunco the people by representing that the trusts are organized for the purpose of reducing the cost of production, thus enabling them to furnish goods at lower prices and still make a reasonable profit on what they sell. This is too thin to fool anybody, and it is contradicted by the fact that the trusts almost immediately raise the price of their goods when they have opposition sufficiently crippled to embolden them to do that. As an illustration of this we quote the following editorial from the New York Tribune, one of the leading Republican papers of the country. Under the heading of "The Hoisting of Prices," it says:

"Some of the trade journals are beginning to suggest that prices are being pushed to high by some new combinations. The Iron Age says that 'on some commodities an unreasonable height has already been attained,' and that 'consumption will be checked by the growing conviction that prices are too inflated to last,' and instances the advance in copper, which has in fact risen from 12.9 cents for Lake on January 1st to 19.25 cents, an advance of 49.2 per cent. This is in large degree a foreign rather than a domestic change, as the price is mainly controlled by the London market and the foreign demand. The same paper observes that 'iron and steel producers are not altogether without blame in this respect.' It would seem not. For instance, wire nails are quoted at $2.10, against $1.25 last December, an advance of 68 per cent., which is considerably more than the rise in copper. The public castigation of the milder sinner is not readily explained.

"Cut nails have advanced since January 1 about 63 per cent. Bar iron at Pittsburg has advanced about 58 per cent. Tank steel plates at Philadelphia have advanced about 76 per cent. In some respects the worst sinner of all is the tinplate combination, which has advanced prices from $2.55 for hundred-pound boxes to $4.05, or 54 per cent. because the industry owes its very existence to the help given it by duties on imports, and sets up the foreign price of tin as an excuse, though the tin makes but a small fraction of the cost, and has risen since December 1 only 40 per cent. It would seem that such sinners as these might be publicly mentioned as well as the copper people, whose market is in fact largely controlled abroad.

"In general the criticism is entirely just, and ought to be heeded by those who are controlling the great industries. It is not exactly the right time to be milking the country to the last drop in order to realize quick and big profits for works largely established by aid of its laws. There is coming a time when such advances in price will be publicly discussed as evidence that the national policy has placed consumers at the mercy of all sorts of combinations which show no sense of regard for the public welfare. That is a charge which will surely be made, and will have some weight, however unfair in its application it may be, and the people who are hastening to screw all they can out of the country's business at this time, when much depends upon maintaining its foreign trade, are not acting as friends of American industries. In fact, they are the worst enemies those industries can have, and it is poor consolation that they are likely to prove their own worst enemies.

For when prices are being hoisted by a natural rush of orders exceed the production, or by artificial combinations or agreements, there is always a rush to anticipate future wants by early orders, so that the demand at such times usually seems to be considerably larger than the ordinary requirements for consumption. But after a considerable advance has been made the new orders begin to fall off, although at the same time the production is increasing under the stimulus of a higher demand, and wages are raised by the legitimate desire of the workers to share in the profits of the business. Materials rise, wages rise, demand for products halts and waits because dealers and consumers have anticipated their needs to some extent, and yet production increases. The natural and legitimate consequences is one which the makers of artificial prices cannot desire, unless they are protected by sales of their properties to big corporations so that they can realize on their stock. But that is not industry. It is something which American industries will find far from helpful when the reaction comes.

It may be incidentally observed in this connection that the Republican organs gave very little attention to trusts, and but rarely essayed to criticise them, until quite recently, when it became apparent that the trusts would figure in the next Presidential campaign, and then they came to the conclusion that it would be good policy to give them a whack occasionally. This accounts for the criticisms we now find in Republican papers and the demands that Congress take some action to repress them by repealing the tariff duties on articles controlled by trusts. Of course this is all for buncombe; they don't mean it, and if they did it wouldn't be done, for the men who run the big trusts have as tight a grip on the Republican statesmen as they have on the American consumers.

It isn't the first time this buncombe game has been played. When the McKinley tariff bill was passed some of the Republican statesmen went so far as to declare that if advantage were taken (as it was predicted would be the case) of the protection given by it to American manufacturers, to form trusts and put up prices, they would be in favor of repealing the duties on articles so controlled, and they followed this up by passing a buncombe law known as "the Sherman anti trust law" which has practically been a dead letter ever since, no serious attempt having been made to enforce it. In fact Attorney General Briggs says it cannot be enforced and that the only way to reach the trusts is through State laws.

It is pretty well settled now that, recognizing the necessity for it, the Republican party will in its next national convention incorporate a plank in its platform condemning trusts, the inspiration of which, however, will be so well understood by the trust magnates that it will give them very little concern, and they will chip into Hanna's hat as usual, for they well know that as between the two parties when they look to for favors or encouragement it will be from the Republican statesmen they will get them. Even if the condemnation were sincere, they would still prefer to see the Republicans in power, for they know they will find it much easier to manipulate a Republican than it would be a Democratic Congress.

What mockery to hear them talking about condemning trusts when Mark Hanna, the chairman of the Republican National Committee, is one of the big trust boomers. They are not fooling the people much with that kind of talk.

WHITEWASH---AS EXPECTED.

That the Court of Inquiry, to investigate the charges made by Gen. Miles as to the bad beef furnished the soldiers, would make a whitewash report has been anticipated from the beginning by many and has been foreshadowed by advance statements, although it was denied that any of the members of the court had talked outside of court on that question or given any intimation as to what the findings would be. But somebody talked, for the public, through the press, had the findings substantially long before the report was published.

In brief, it finds that the charges made by General Miles are not sustained; that the refrigerated beef was all right, but could not stand a tropical sun for more than a certain number of hours; that the canned roast beef (so-called) was as good as that furnished to the trade before the war, although it is not a suitable food for soldiers; that General Miles was guilty of negligence in not having presented his objections to the beef sooner if he had reason to believe it what he said it was or had proof to that effect; that Inspector Maus, of General Miles' staff, is also guilty for the same reason, in not having reported as to the quality of the beef eaten, and that Commissary General Eagan committed a gross and inexcusable blunder in having contracted for 7,000,000 pounds of this canned roast beef when 2,000,00C pounds would have been amply sufficient, although the Commissary General does not appear to have profited by this deal—simply blundered that's all.

To sum it up the report is simply a certificate of character for the beef men who had contracts to furnish beef, a censure of Miles, and a whack at scape-goat Eagan.

It winds up with a recommendation that all that is necessary having been learned and said there is no occasion to pursue the investigation any further, and that the whole matter be therefore dropped. As the President has approved the findings, he doubtless agrees in the conclusion, and this will be the end of it as far as he and the War Department are concerned for they both regard this report as a vindication and a happy deliverance. It will be the end of the matter with Gen. Miles, as far as courts of inquiry go, for when the men who are interested in putting him in the wrong have the appointing of the court, he might just as well keep out of court.

But it is not the end of the matter with the public, for no report in the world could ever convince the people who have read the evidence given before that court, and the letters from soldiers and others in a position to know what they wrote about, that there were not ample grounds for the charges made by Gen. Miles. Whether the men who sent this objectionable and unfit meat to our soldiers knew it was unfit, is another matter, but the fact remains that it was unfit and much of it poisonous, as admitted in this whitewashing report.

As to the use of chemicals, this is practically ignored by the court, although admitted by some of the witnesses representing the beef-packing establishments, but there is corroborating proof furnished by the chemists who have recently appeared and testified before the Senatorial Pure Food Commission now sitting in Washington. They declare that these preserving decoctions are in general use among butchers in Illinois, and doubtless in other States.

THE CHICAGO CANAL.

For several years the city of Chicago has been at work on a canal, to connect Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river, the prime object of which is to carry away sewage from that great city, and next to open a waterway between the Mississippi and the Lake. The work has been progressing for some time, and is now nearing completion. But St. Louis is raising objections to this scheme, and probably other cities on the lower Mississippi will. The objection and the action taken by St. Louis are set forth in the following, which we clip from the Baltimore Sun, and publish on account of the interesting facts and figures it contains:

A commission appointed by the mayor of St. Louis to investigate the Chicago drainage canal, with special reference to its probable effect on the purity of the water of the Mississippi, has just reported and its report is rather unfavorable to the ambitious enterprise on which Chicago is spending $28,000,000. If ever completed and used the canal, it is affirmed, will so contaminate the water supply of the towns in the valleys of the Desplaines, Illinois and Mississippi rivers as to produce epidemics. Its object is to dispose of sewage estimated at 25,000 cubit feet per minute by creating an artificial channel that will drain into the Mississippi. As the minimum flow of the latter at St. Louis is about 2,000,000 cubit feet per minute, the Chicago sewage will form a very perceptible percentage of the water of the water used by the people of St. Louis for drinking purposes. To this the people of St. Louis object. It is all very well, they concede, for the Chicagoans to provide an outflow for the sewage of their city, but if they wish to turn it into the Mississippi they must take steps to purify it before it enter that stream.

"The report calls attention to two facts which may hinder the use of the canal. The canal is expected to take 300,000 cubic feet of water a minute from Lake Michigan, and there is talk of its becoming an important avenue of commerce between the Mississippi valley and the lake region. But to take so much water would seriously reduce the level of Lake Michigan and the United States has not yet given its permission. The plan contemplates the ultimate use of 600,000 cubit feet, or about four per cent. of the mean discharge of Niagara river, As Canada has rights in the waters of the Great Lakes an obstacle to the drainage canal scheme lies in that direction also. So considerable is the interest St. Louis takes in the preservation of the purity of the Mississippi—threatened by the canal—that it is likely to carry the matter into the courts, where proceedings may be expected to continue for a weary length of time."

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Fayetteville Observer: Mr. J. M. McKay, the venerable postmaster of Little River Academy, died Monday afternoon in the 80th year of his age. He was sitting up in a chair apparently in his usual health when death came upon him in a twinkling.

— Lumberton Robesonian: Mrs. Ada Phillips, of Allenton, while at a hen's nest last week was bitten on the foot twice by a snake. While the kind of snake was not known, it was poisonous, as Mrs. Phillips has suffered intensely since and was reported in a critical condition Saturday night. —— We learn that a destructive hail storm visited the Back Swamp section Monday afternoon. Tobacco, corn and cotton were badly damaged and some tobacco barns unroofed.

— Newbern Journal: Curator H. H Brimley, of the State Museum, was in the city last night on his return from Onslow county, where he went to look into the "find" at the mouth of New River Inlet. When seen last night Mr. Brimley said: "The skeleton shown me, I at once found to be that of a whale, which must, when alive, have been 50 or 55 feet in length. The discovery caused some excitement at New River, and preparations were being made to place the "find" on exhibition when I arrived."

— Greensboro Record: Calvin Wyrick, once a deputy under Sheriff Hoskins and who lived here for some years, was found dead in a field Tuesday morning on his farm in Madison township, where he had been living recently. He went out to work as usual, and one of the hands found him near a spring of water. He had not been complaining, though it is said he had never been stout since an attack of measles a number of years ago, having some heart trouble. He was, perhaps, about 50 years old, and leaves a family.

— Wilkesboro Chronicle: Jim McGrady, colored, died Tuesday afternoon of last week at half past six o'clock. Thursday morning the coroner, with a jury, held an inquest, and after investigating and examining witnesses, the jury decided that McGrady came to his death from a wound inflicted on the head with a hoe in the hands of Gilmore Vannoy, colored. Vannoy had been placed in jail Wednesday morning. Saturday Vannoy had a preliminary hearing before Esq. J. H. Ellis and was bound over in a bond of $200. —— For several weeks the crows have been catching and carrying away young chickens from the home of Mr. John E. McEwen. He tells us that for the last several days they have been carrying off an average of three little chickens per day. It is the first case of the kind we have ever heard of.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— Within the last six months, as the World shows to-day, trust companies have organized with a total capitalization of over $3,000,000,000. When will the bubble burst? New York World, Dem.

—— The court of inquiry's report on the beef scandal has been made public by the President. From beginning to the end it is a bold effort to whitewash the Commissary Department, excuse Alger and give the Chicago beef contractors a certificate of character.—N. Y Journal, Dem.

—— President McKinley's cabinet officers are so busily employed in defending his Philippine policy that they have no time to attend to their official duties, but on the contrary, are skipping from one part of the country to another telling the people, as Secretary Long did a few days ago, in Boston, that the policy of the administration is as humane and tender as the gentlest woman in the land.—New Orleans States, Dem.

—— The commission did not sit in star chamber. The testimony given before it has been read and dissected by the whole American people, and their unanimous decision, based on that testimony, is that the interests of the service and the vindication of the national honor imperatively demand that there shall be "further proceedings." A great wrong has been committed, and the nation will not rest until its perpetrators are punished.—New York Herald, Ind.

The Power of a Cyclone.

Careful estimates of the force of a cyclone and the energy required to keep a full fledged hurricane in active operation reveal the presence of a power that makes the mightiest efforts of man appear as nothing in comparison.

A force fully equal to 473,000,000 horsepower was estimated as developed in a West Indian cyclone. This is about 15 times the power that is creatable by all the means within the range of man's capabilities during the same time.

Were steam, water, windmills and the strength of all men and all animals combined they could not at all approach the tremendous force exerted by this terrible storm.

A Barnum Surprise.

A good story of the late George Augustus Sala and Barnum is told. It was on the occasion of the last visit of the famous showman to England, when a public dinner was tendered to Mr. Barnum Mr Sala presided. In the reception room, where all were waiting to welcome the guest of the evening, Mr Barnum came in, beaming, and, shaking hands with the chairman, said:

"This is indeed a surprise to me."

"Did you hear that?" Mr. Sala whispered. "Why, he arranged for the dinner himself."

"Your majesty, said the prime minister, "this is the page who has been remiss in his duty."

"Aha!" exclaimed the king. "We'll have to bring him to book."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the page. "A noble jest, I'll be bound."

Thereupon the king's heart softened. for he marveled that a man so young could make so old a joke.—Catholic Standard and Times.

LIFE IN THE ARCTIC.

POPULAR ERRORS ABOUT CONDITIONS IN THE ICY NORTH.

The Long Nightless Summers and Dayless Winters—The Gathering Dusk and the Breaking Dawn—The Luxury of a Sleeping Bag.

There is such a perverted impression in the popular mind about the actual arctic conditions that I always find it difficult to impress my listeners with a real knowledge of polar phenomena. The surroundings are, of course, wild enough to satisfy the most savage longings, but it must not be inferred that the temperature of the air is always below zero, nor that the land is completely buried by perennial snow, nor that the sea is always covered by paleocrystic ice floes or mountainous ice masses. During the low arctic night such conditions are fairly constant, but for much of the year the genial rays of the sun are felt.

Our headquarters (the first Peary expedition) in 1891 were pitched on the northwest coast of Greenland, near the seventy-eighth parallel of latitude, which is about midway between the north pole and the Arctic circle. In this latitude the seasons are briefly as follows:

A long nightless summer day of nearly four months and an extended dayless winter night of nearly four months. These periods are separated from each other by a season of advancing night during the autumn when the sun gradually recedes, but reappears for a shorter period every succeeding day, until it finally remains below the horizon on Oct. 25. In the spring there is a similar period, but it is the dawn of the coming day. The sun reappears on Feb. 14. It first remains only a few minutes, but each succeeding day it rises higher and sweeps more of the southern sky, until about May 1 it remains above the horizon, and then the long arctic day with its silvery glory begins.

The specific effects of cold and darkness and light are difficult of analysis, more so among the members of our party than among the native people and animals. The effect of isolation, of change of food, clothing and habits of life, is so potent that any physical or mental peculiarities must necessarily include these elements.

The withdrawal of heat is so gradual that the animal organisms have an opportunity to protect themselves. During the summer (the only time when the extreme north is accessible) the temperature and some of the meteorological conditions are much like our March and April weather. Incredible myriads of birds in summer plumage, fresh from the temperate zone, now congregate on the off lying islands and moss covered rocky cliffs, but with the first warning of the polar night, as the sun drops below the southern sky, they quickly emigrate to a more congenial land, leaving apparently lifeless the cold shores which have been animated by their wild shrills of love and joy. Their powers and instincts are such that they have only to seek the lands which are best adapted to their manner of living. Many of the forms of sea life are able to do the same, but men and all other land animals must remain and become adapted to the changing conditions.

The polar bear changes his fur during the summer to protect him from the expected cold next winter, but life is to him an awful struggle during the long night. Nevertheless he early develops an ability to fast for prolonged periods, which is a faculty possessed by all the other arctic land life. The nearly complete covering of the sea by the winter ice deprives him of his accustomed source of food; hence he must either hibernate or find his way far out over a lifeless sea of ice to the open water, where varying fortunes may put him in possession of an unwary meal. But with all brain's ingenuity and hard earned adaptability long periods of famine are always before him.

The native people, like the animals, have evolved a system of life and adaptation to their habitat which could not be much improved by civilized aid. They are able to withstand long periods of famine, like the deer and bear, with no apparent injury, except a loss of bodily weight. Their cutaneous circulation is always profuse. The muscular outlines are largely obliterated by an envelopment of fibro fatty tissue like that of the seal and walrus. The intestinal capacity is greatly increased to afford greater surface for the absorption of nitrogenous and fatty foods.

I shall always remember our camps while traveling over the trackless wastes of snow during this period, particularly the stormy scenes. We undressed in the open air, crept into our sleeping bags and with a rare delight stretched out upon the virgin fields of snow for a long sleep. There was nothing but the high blue sky above us and often there were many hundred feet of snow and ice beneath us. At first, after reclining, we were nearly stiff from cold, but this was soon followed by a glowing reaction, when we were conscious of bounding streams of heated blood sent throbbing through tense arteries. We felt doubly the wild pleasures of primitive life, as we heard the roaring storms and felt the snow charged winds blasting against our protected bodies.

Such storms always brought us to sharp consciousness of the superb animal comfort, as comforts go in the arctic. All of this served to enhance our admiration for the wonderful mechanisms of the human body. Nothing could bring one to a keener realization of this than our experience. To feel the heart force heat and life to the surface while resting over and sometimes under a blanket of protecting snow is to feel the electric glow which for the want of a better term we call life.

In conclusion I wish to emphasize the fact that it is not the low temperature of the arctic from which explorers suffer. It is the long and intense darkness and the inability to carry sufficient food and accustomed aids to personal comfort. But this is easily counterbalanced by the acute passions of life as they are brought out by the prolonged noonday splendor after resting in the long darkness. The white lights and dark shades entering into the soul make life a long dream—the spirit now effervescing, then smothered again, almost frozen, only to be thawed out for an ascent into an atmosphere of heavenly purity. In my judgment polar grandness lifts the mind's horizon, and, as a whole, the experience affords a wild, weird and poetic existence long to be remembered.—F. A. Cook, M. D., in Medical Record.

Original Definitions.

Written examinations frequently bring to light curious notions. It is related that a recent annual examination paper conveyed the information that John Bright was chiefly distinguished for a disease, usually fatal, which he had discovered, and that Richard Wagner was the inventor of a sleeping car. Anthology in another school was described as "the study of insects," and for pedagogy these definitions were submitted by various pupils: "The science of religion." "The study of the feet" and "Learned pomposity." Can it be that the author of the last definition was an accomplished satirist?—Youth's Companion.

"Your supposition does you great credit," replied Mr. Snaggs sarcastically. "It's a wonder you didn't imagine that doctors joined the army for the purpose of building bridges or going up in a balloon. Where should army surgeons be except in the medical corps?"

"Well, I thought that they might possibly belong to the lancers."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Sitting Bull's Grave.

A broken wooden headboard and a neglected mound of earth in the Fort Yates (N. D.) military cemetery mark the resting place of Sitting Bull, the great Sioux medicine man whose wily brain planned the death trap at Little Big Horn into which General Custer's command fell. On the broken headboard is written: "No. 54. Sitting Bull, Indian." Relic hunters have cut most of the headboard away.

MEXICAN POLITENESS

IT IS SO PROFUSE AS TO BE ALMOST LUDICROUS.

Even If Painfully Hurt by Another Through a Stupid or Bungling Accident Words of Courtesy Bubble From the Lips of the Victim.

"Oh, how deliciously polite!" is a phrase we hear every day from the lips of foreign ladies when they enjoy the not unusual sight of two natives, ragged beyond all description perhaps, who stop a horse car in the street and keep it standing while each insists with elegant bows and flowing compliments that the other precede him in going up the steps.

"After you, sir."

"Not at all. I am unworthy of such a high honor."

"I dare not take precedence, sir."

"It is only what is due your superiority. Walk up, please."

"Not for all the world. You are entitled to that preference."

This goes on for some time until the car begins to move and both fling themselves at once on the steps, smashing the corns of another man standing on the platform, an accident that gives rise to more effusions of good breeding.

"Oh, sir, how sorry I am to have trod on your feet! I sincerely entreat you to excuse my oversight."

"Never mind," says the victim, gritting his teeth and with tears in his eyes, "it is an honor to be trod on by you."

"Thanks for your kindness."

"I am myself in duty bound to thank you."

In fact, dudes from over the sea or from across the Rio Grande may boast of their wealth and their Parisian made trousers, belles of other lands of their golden tresses and charming personalities, but no other nation equals the stately dignity of Mexican courtesy.

If it is a great luxury to be taught how to bow and what to do under all circumstances by a gentleman who knows these things because he belongs to the European aristocracy and has behind him a line of ancestors who behaved as well as they could in such matters, it is surprising to observe in a whole nation, even in the humblest of classes, courtesy not produced by artificial means, but gradually and refinedly practiced as a special endowment of nature.

Persons in other countries are rarely treated to such scenes as those we have attempted to describe, and to many they might appear exaggerated, but let those that doubt come and judge for themselves.

I will cite a few authentic experiences in illustration of the subject:

An American young lady was once talking with an old Mexican gentleman, and she laughingly said something about having some literary work to do.

It was good to see the old fellow's impressive manner and air of perfect sincerity as he exclaimed: "Work! Miss, such lips as yours should never mention work. You should be a queen and wear pearls as beautiful as those incased in your lovely mouth."

Another young woman was overheard to say in English to her mother in the theater:

"Look at that Mexican girl. Do you like her? I think her nose is too long and her features are too sharp."

Whereupon the Mexican girl said in her most endearing tone in broken English:

"Miss, as God bestowed on you all the attributes of perfect beauty, very little was left for me. Believe me, you are the sweetest creature I ever laid my eyes on, and I never get tired of looking at your charming face."

A young man who happened to be accidentally struck in one of his eyes by a pretty 16-year-old damsel with her parasol said appealingly while the blood flowed from the wound:

"Lovely one, be not cruel, seeing that cruelty and beauty cannot dwell together!"

Nowhere will the stranger find more genuine civility and kindness than among the Mexicans.

Their houses, their families, their horses, their flowers, their time, even their lives, are placed, figuratively at least, "at your disposition."

"A los pies de V., senora" (My lady, I am at your feet) is the prescribed form of salutation from a gentleman who meets a lady; where, if two gentlemen meet, they address one another as follows: "Beso a V. la mane" (I kiss your hand).

The same applies to written correspondence. A note from a gentleman to a lady ends in this wise: "Soy de V., senora, atento servidor, Q. SS. PP. B." The initials are for "quo sus pies besa," and the whole phrase stands for, "I am, my lady, your attentive servant, who kisses your feet."

If a gentleman is addressed in writing, only his hands are kissed, not his feet.

These formulas are followed not only by the richer but by all classes. As to the poorest, their courtesy toward one another is widely different from the gruff, boorish intercourse of the plebeians of other nations.

The poor of Mexico cannot frame a sentence without employing one or more terms of endearment.

"Como estas, mi alma?" (How are you, my soul?) The words they address each other speak of the gentle consideration for the feelings of their neighbors, which characterizes the race and emanates from spontaneous courtesy.

A Mexican gentleman will never permit a lady to descend the stairs unaccompanied. He takes her softly by the hand or offers his arm to assist her in going down the steps, and only takes leave of her at the street door, when he does not insist on leaving the lady at her own home.

Love is more the business of life in Mexico than in northern climes, perhaps because other people have more diversion than we have. The ladylove is ardently styled "the very eyes of me," but that does not prevent the Mexican beau, when stung by jealousy, from denouncing love as treacherous.

"Since there is no help, I bow before you, kiss your feet and depart," is the becoming way in which the unrequited lover takes leave of the girl that has given him the cold shoulder.

All hope is over, love is stretched upon his bier, but the Mexican whom a beauty despises, although naturally angered at the slight, pretends to feel more keenly than anything else the annoyance he has given her with his unremitting attentions. "Excuse me, fair lady, for having put you to the trouble of repelling the audacious revelation of the feeling you have awakened in my bosom." Such is the mild form in which he gives vent to his rage and despair.—Two Republics, City of Mexico.

It is the mind that makes the body rich, and as the sun breaks through the darkest clouds, so honor peereth in the meanest habit.—Shakespeare.

MAKING OF SHERRY.

The Interesting Manner In Which This Wine Is Manufactured.

Sherry as a wine has never been so popular in this country as in Europe, although it enters very largely into the preparation of many drugs. Very little is generally known about the process of manufacture. According to a recent Spanish report, it is full of interest. The grapes are taken to the corner of the presshouse and thrown into a press of primitive construction, consisting of a wooden trough about ten feet square, with a screw press in the center. The trough is filled with 1,800 pounds of grapes, which are then crushed by the feet of men wearing wooden clogs. The reason of this is that the weight of a man is just sufficient to force out the juice and not enough to bruise the skins or branches, which would give a bitter flavor to the wine.

The treading is carefully and methodically done, each row coming in its turn under the crush of the sabot. After this first level pressing sulphate of lime is sprinkled over the mess. This is known as "yeso" and occurs as a pure earth in the Jerez districts. This earth is added in the proportion of 2½ pounds to 1,800 pounds of grapes. The average yield is about 110 gallons for one filling of the press. When the grapes have been trodden several times, the screw press is used. The liquor is put away and fermented for about three weeks, when it begins to clear and can be drawn off from the lees. In this condition it is really a young wine and is given the name of "moto." As the wine matures it is placed in its special class. If it is a delicate, light wine, it is known as "fino," while if it should have a highly vinous character it is classed as "oloroso."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WOE IN ONE WHOLE FAMILY.

Mean Revenge Taken by a Woman Peddler of Uncertain Age.

"Is Mrs. Benton in?" inquired a good looking girl carrying a number of sofa pillows, as she knocked at the door of the top flat in the big building at Sixty-fourth street and Ellis avenue. Mrs. Benton was in, and to her the girl confided the fact that she was selling real sea moss stuffed sofa pillows at $1 each. Mrs. Benton didn't care to invest in the suspicious looking articles, and the girl went away in a huff. Ten minutes later there was another knock on the door. This time it was the tenant from the first floor come up to ask Mrs. Benton if she could change a $5 bill.

"I've been all through the building trying to get it changed," she said as she put it back in her purse. "I wanted to buy one of your niece's sofa pillows, but I guess I will have to wait till some other time. She said she would let me have one for 75 cents. But what's the matter, Mrs. Benton? Are you ill?"

Mrs. Benton dropped into a chair and gasped: "Buy one of my niece's pillows! I haven't got any niece. Why, did that woman have the impudence to tell you she is my niece? Why—why, she's a stranger to me and she's older than I am—I know she is. I never saw her in my life before this morning."

"Well, she told me she was your niece," said the first floor lady, looking somewhat frightened. "I am sure I couldn't be mistaken. And she seemed such a sweet kind of a girl. Why, she even said you had raised her and taught her to make those pillows. And she said that she was selling them because times were so hard"—

But Mrs. Benton jumped up in a hurry. "I'll go right down stairs with you and ask her what she means. She's the most outrageous person I ever heard of. The idea of my raising that old thing!"

When Mrs. Benton and her friend got down stairs, the girl had gone, but a tour of the building revealed the fact that many of the tenants had bought pillows on the supposition that they were assisting Mrs. Benton as well as her niece. One of them, a Mrs. Graves, added that she didn't intend to buy until the young lady had told her what a hard time Mr. Benton was having to pay the rent, and what a failure his drug store had proved, and how the young woman was going down to meet Mr. Benton with the money and give it to him because he was such a dear, kind uncle to her.

That evening after supper an indignant young couple called on everybody in the big flat building, and after protesting their ignorance of the pillow peddler left a full description of all their friends and relatives as a basis for future references.

"The idea of that hussy telling them I was her aunt!" said Mrs. Benton to her husband when they got back.

"What kills me is the cold nerve of the thing in saying I couldn't pay my rent," said her spouse.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Morning Star.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 11, 1899.

COTTON CROP REPORT.

Reduction in the Acreage As Indicated by Correspondents in Every Cotton Growing State.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The cotton crop report for May issued to-day by the Department of Agriculture is as follows:

"The cotton report for the month of May indicates merely the belief of correspondents, on May 1, as to the intentions of planters regarding the acreage to be planted, and the estimates being liable to modification during May, they should be regarded merely as a general indication of the strength of the tendency toward an enlargement or reduction of acreage.

"In every cotton-growing State the indications on the 1st inst. pointed to a reduced acreage, with a corresponding decrease in the sale of fertilizers and an increased acreage in the various food crops.

"The probable reduction by States is as follows: In Mississippi and Indian Territory, 5 per cent.; in Alabama, 8; Texas, 9; Arkansas, 10; South Carolina, 11; Louisiana, 12; Georgia, 13; North Carolina and Tennessee, 14; Oklahoma, 18.

"No estimate of the total reduction will be published until next month, when the final reports on planting will be compared with the revised acreage figures for last year."

JUDGE EWART'S CASE.

Comptroller of Currency Decides That He is Entitled to Salary From Time of Qualification.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The Comptroller of the Currency has decided that Judge Ewart, of the western district of North Carolina, is entitled to receive the salary attached to the office from the date of his qualification under the recess appointment issued to him by the President on April 13th, 1899. During the last session of Congress Mr. Ewart served as district judge under a recess appointment issued July 13th, 1898. On December 13th, 1898, the President again sent his nomination to the Senate, but no action was taken thereon. On April 13th, 1899, a second recess appointment was issued to Mr. Ewart under which he qualified, and the question was raised by the disbursing clerk of the department of justice whether he was entitled to a salary from April 12th last.

The comptroller reviews the decision of former attorneys general as to the authority of the President in making recess appointments and decides the question in the affirmative.

MAGNIFICENT SERVICE.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—St. Paul's Catholic Church, of this city, will have one of the most costly and novel communion services in America. Rev. Jos. Rankin and Father Mackin have collected enough gold and precious stones to make a superb chalice and enough silver for the ciborium and plate. The jewels consist of 200 pearls, many diamonds, rubies and other rare stones. The contributions consisted of nuggets of gold and silver, old coins and jewelry. Many of the latter being historical family relics. Some of the heirlooms have been handed down for generations in the oldest families of the country.

One magnificent gift, a cross of diamonds, will adorn the front of the chalice. Among the many gifts are souvenirs of brave men who have given their lives in defence of the flag, among the last being a gold pencil taken from the body of a soldier in the Mexican war, and a ring from the hand of a volunteer who died on a battlefield in Cuba.

ADMIRAL DEWEY.

Movement On Foot to Secure His Return by Way of San Francisco.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—An effort has begun in the West to have Admiral Dewey return by way of San Francisco, and it is being supplemented here. The representative of one of the trans continental railroads called at the Navy Department and stated that if Admiral Dewey returned by way of San Francisco this railroad proposed to place at his service an entire train, the finest that ever crossed the continent, and make it subject to his wishes as to the places and time of stops on the way east. It was urged also that this would give practically the whole country an opportunity to join in the reception to the hero of Manila, instead of restricting it to the stretch between New York and Washington.

WHOLESALE POISONING.

At a Colored Revival Meeting in a Georgia Town.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BUENA, VISTA, GA., May 10.—A wholesale poisoning occurred at a colored revival meeting near here Monday. Among the viands provided for the delegates attending the meeting was a can of buttermilk, from which a dozen members drank freely. All were rendered deathly sick almost immediately, and Rev. Dounoway died in a few hours. Two other preachers are also expected to die. It is believed the milk was poisoned from contact with the metal vessel containing it.

The Queen Regent of Spain has conferred the Grand Cross of Military Merit on the Austrian Minister of War, and the German Minister of the Navy. It is generally supposed that the decorations have been bestowed in recognition of the friendly attitude of Austria and Germany toward Spain during the recent war with the United States.

THE VETERANS' ANNUAL REUNION.

The Attendance Not So Large But the Enthusiasm is at Top Flood.

CHARLESTON'S WELCOME.

The Veterans' Parade—Business Session of Reunion—Resolution Endorsing McKinley's Suggestion Concerning Confederate Graves.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 10.—Almost the first official act of the ninth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans Association which began its session to day, was an attempt by General Stephen D. Lee, of Mississippi, to secure an endorsement of President McKinley's suggestion, made in his recent Atlanta speach, that the care of the graves of Confederate dead should be undertaken by the Federal government. Action on the resolution, however, was frustrated by a motion to refer it to the committee on resolutions, in spite of a rather general sentiment to put it through with enthusiasm. As this committee is yet to be appointed it is not probable that the matter will be taken up to-morrow, and the ultimate fate of the resolution is problematical.

A Duty of the South.

The motion to refer originated with Dr. J. William Jones, of Virginia, and met with some opposition, and it is believed the matter will eventually cause some discussion, as there is a decided faction in favor of General Lee's sentiments, while the opposition is also said to be very strong. The reference to a committee probably will result in amending the resolution, so that while thanking the President and acknowledging his action as a graceful one, it will declare that the care of its dead is a duty of the South.

Ideal weather conditions favor the veterans of the gray and their thousands of friends who are crowding this hospitable little Southern city. A brilliant sun is tempered by a cool breeze from the ocean, and fair skies hold no presage of rain to mar the interesting programme of amusements. A conservative estimate places at between 25,000 and 30,000. The attendance from the South at large is not so general as in former years, but the South Carolinians and citizens from adjacent States make up the deficiency, while Southern enthusiasm is at top flood. Everywhere the blare of bands and the strains of the "Bonnie Blue Flag" mingle with "Dixie" and other airs dear to the Southland, while cheering crowds greet every repetition of the tunes. The best of order prevails, and over all is the air of genial sociability which marks the annual gatherings of the association.

Business Sessions.

The business session of the reunion was called to order this morning by General C. I. Walker, commanding the South Carolina division, in the handsome auditorium erected for the occasion by the city of Charleston. Its enormous floor space was crowded and thousands were unable to gain admittance to the building. When General John B. Gordon, the commander-in-chief, appeared upon the stage he was greeted with thunders of applause. The band struck up "Dixie" and the veterans cheered and cheered again. In calling the assemblage to order General Walker spoke of Charleston's invitation to the veterans to meet at the birthplace of secession, and said that the gavel he was using was that which in 1860 had been used to call to order the secession convention. The chairs used by the officers to-day and the table of the presiding officer were the same as used on that memorable occasion.

Dr. J. Wm. Jones, the Chaplain General, then invoked the divine blessing upon the convention. It asked it of the God of our common country, and prayed that all Confederates may be true to the principles of constitutional freedom for which our fathers fought and that "these principles might be handed down to our children's children." He invoked the divine blessing upon the President of the United States and all in authority.

Speaker Gary, of the House of Representatives of South Carolina, presented the resolutions adopted by the General Assembly in regard to the holding of the reunion in this State.

General Walker then introduced Lieutenant Governor McSweeney, whose mention of Wheeler was applauded and of Hampton cheered.

Gen. Gordon Presented.

Mayor Smyth of Charleston, extended to the visitors a welcome. Gen. Gordon was then escorted to the front of the stage and his appearance was the signal for a storm of applause. Cheers and shrill yells for the commander-in-chief mingled with the crash of the band, and hats, handkerchiefs and flags were waved frantically. When order was finally secured the old Confederate chieftain was presented by General Walker, and delivered an eloquent address. He spoke with all the vigor, eloquence and grace which have won for him a national reputation as an orator.

General Gordon closed his speech with these words:

"I feel empowered by your confidence to send to every patriot in every section and State the fraternal greetings of this convention and of the whole people; to pledge, in the name of every Confederate, and son and daughter of a Confederate, the South's eternal loyalty to every cause for the uplifting of American manhood, the perpetuity of American freedom, the unity of the American people; that by all these agencies we may accelerate the onward march of the republic in its benign mission to humanity."

After the applause had subsided, General Gordon led Mrs. Stonewall Jackson to the front of the stage and she was enthusiastically applauded. As he presented Mrs. Jackson, and in the first lull, General Gordon said: "I will shake her hands for you all," and in an instant he added, "No, I will do more than that; I am going to hug her for you," and with that he did what he said he was going to do, which met the hearty approval of the vast throng.

Lee's Resolution.

It was at this stage General Lee presented his resolution, the full text of which follows:

"WHEREAS, In Atlanta, Ga., on December 14th, 1898, the President of the United States of America gave utterance to the sentiment: 'That the time has come when the United States should share in caring for the graves of the Confederate dead;' and, whereas, this utterance of the chief executive of the nation demands from us, the survivors of our dead comrades in arms, a frank and generous response to so lofty and magnanimous sentiment; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That in this act of President McKinley and in its reception by our brethren of the North, we recognize authoritative evidence that we are again a united people, and one in determination to exhibit to the world the gentler as well as the sterner traits of American character, and that we accept the suggestion of our chief executive in the spirit in which it was made, believing that such legislation by the general government as he suggested would show clearly the advance that the American people have achieved in those higher virtues that adorn a great nation."

Resolutions Referred to Committee.

Chaplain Jones said he thought the resolutions should be referred to the committee on resolutions, to be regularly appointed.

Some members had not heard the resolutions and called for them to be reread. This was done by General Lee, who added that he hoped the resolutions would be adopted without reference.

Dr. Harriss, of Florida, said that from the very nature of the resolutions he did not think they should be referred. It would be well to take a direct vote on them at the time.

Mr. F. H. Busbee, of North Carolina, said he thought the resolutions should be referred. "It would do no harm to refer them and no disrespect was intended. Every loyal Confederate appreciated the good intentions of President McKinley in what he had said in Atlanta. But," Mr. Busbee said, "there ought to be a distinction between graves in the North—between graves in Chicago or Columbus and those on the fields of Virginia and the South. There is a difference between the graves and their care. Here there are those who willingly and cheerfully take care of the graves of the noble heroes (pointing in the direction of the boxes filled with ladies.) In the North and East there may not be these loving hands, and that is why I say there is a distinction."

After this it was decided without further discussion that the resolutions be referred to the Committee on Resolutions.

Gordon then presented Miss Kate Cabell Currie, of Dallas, Texas; Miss Laura Lawendon, of New Orleans, Mrs. Kirby Smith, and several other ladies whose husbands or fathers were Confederate leaders. In response to the repeated demands of the audience he also presented Mrs. Gordon, who was greeted with an outburst of applause. The session then adjourned.

The Veterans' Parade.

The parade of the veterans occurred this afternoon and they marched through a dense crowd of cheering people. Led by Generals Gordon and Wade Hampton, a long line of the grizzled men who had followed these leaders and the other captains of the Confederate armies through four years of hardship and battle, marched sturdily under the blazing Southern sun to the inspiriting strains of "Dixie," of the "Bonnie Blue Flag," and the irrelevant but irrepressible "There Will be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-night." At intervals along the line of march the fluttering of a war worn and shot-torn battle flag called forth cheers, while many heads were bared as the frayed emblems of a dead cause gleamed over some organization whose name is a household word to the South. Here and there a camp appeared in the grey jeans uniform, black slouch hats and carrying muskets of the old pattern, and all the war paraphernalia of sixty-one.

Hampton and Gordon were cheered vociferously every step, and rode almost the entire route with bared heads. The absence of General Wheeler in the line was a source of considerable disappointment. He reached the city early to-day but did not participate in the parade.

Five Thousand in Line.

Including the kindred organizations and distinguished guests and committees, there were probably five thousand persons in the line, probably 3,000 of them were veterans. The parade was led by General Walker and staff, followed by the escort composed of the local military companies, cadets and the naval reserves. Then came General Gordon and his staff, followed by a long line of carriages, containing the sponsors and maids of honor of various camps. The veterans were led by General Wade Hampton at the head of the army of Northern Virginia, and preceded by twenty-one battle flags and their escorts. The army of Tennessee followed, led by General Stephen D. Lee, and was followed by the camps representing the trans-Mississippi army in command of General Cabell. The sons of Confederate Veterans brought up the rear.

The State divisions were in command of the following officers: South Carolina, General C. I. Walker; Virginia, General Brander; Maryland, General Tripp; West Virginia, General White; Mississippi, General Campbell; Florida, General Law; Alabama, General Ferguson; Georgia, General Evans; Louisiana, General Tunnard; Texas, General Polley; Arkansas, General Horner; Indian Territory, General Coleman; Missouri, General McCullough; North Carolina, Gen. DeRosset; Tennessee, Gen. G. W. Gudger; Oklahoma, Gen. Casler.

Memorial Exercises.

The parade was dismissed at the auditorium where the memorial exercises were held. This being South Carolina Memorial day the occasion was one of double significance. The ceremonies were very impressive and the auditorium was again filled to its capacity.

The memorial address was delivered by Adjutant General Gorman, who spoke eloquently of the hero dead of the South and paid high tribute to its women.

Captain Jones, in his opening prayer, made an indirect allusion to the Lee resolutions by expressing the hope that the women of the South would keep up the noble work of caring for the graves of the Southern dead, and that no one would take from them that sacred privilege.

Interesting Ceremony.

To-night at the auditorium an interesting ceremony took place in the presentation to General Moorman, adjutant general of the association, of a flag from each of the Southern States. An immense crowd was present and the occasion was made rather a social one. General Moorman was the chief mover in the organization of Confederate veterans and formed the first camp in New Orleans. The flags were presented by the young lady sponsors from the States and brief addresses were made for each by an officer.

The campaign for the place of holding the next union is on and the delegates from the candidate cities are hard at work. These are Louisville, Norfolk, Baltimore, St. Louis and New Orleans, of which the first named is said to-night to be the favorite, The Kentucky town was a strong candidate for the present reunion.

U. S. Cruiser Raleigh.

The cruiser Raleigh came up to the city to-day and anchored off the Battery, where she lies dressed in bunting from rail to main-truck. All day a fleet of small craft have passed to her carrying visitors, and Captain Coghlan and his officers have been busy showing the handsome little cruiser that helped Dewey win the battle of Manila at the other side of the world. The reception to the ship occurred early this morning. The reception committee boarded the cutter Colfax and the light-house steamer Wisteria and proceeded down the harbor to where the cruiser lay off Fort Sumter. Captain Coghlan received the visitors, and after an exchange of speeches the little fleet steamed up the harbor to the booming guns of a shore battery, while the Raleigh returned the salute. Afterwards, the Raleigh's officers were entertained at a reception and luncheon at the Carolina Yacht Club. To-night there was a superb display of fireworks, excursions to the various resorts, and a large number of social functions in honor of the sponsors and visiting ladies.

THE MISHAP TO THE RALEIGH

[Telegram to Baltimore Herald.]

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 9.—While entering the Jettied Swash Channel, drawing twenty feet of water, and just abreast of No. 1 Black Buoy, the Raleigh touched bottom to-day and hung for a moment. The tide caught her broadside and swept her across the channel and upon the sand bank.

The ship was being conned by Captain Coghlan and Pilot Lind. The latter is a licensed coast pilot, and has been with the ship since leaving New York. At the time of striking the ship was exactly on the range leading up the channel, and the lead showed a depth of four fathoms a moment before. She is now lying with her starboard side against the bank heading west and heeled 11 degrees to port. Her bow is 150 feet southwest of the black buoy.

There is 16 feet of water along her starboard side. The ship is resting easily and apparently no damage will result, only delay in getting up to the city. Tugs have been signalled for. No doubt is felt that she will get off at the next high tide. Every effort with engines and anchors was made to get her off before the morning tide commenced to fall, but unsuccessfully.

AFFAIRS IN HAVANA.

Sensational Report of Mauser Rifles Found in the Possession of An Anti-Annexationist.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

HAVANA, May 10.—A sensational report has been published in the local papers here of the discovery of five hundred Mauser rifles in the possession of a prominent anti-annexationist of Havana. Chief of Detectives Alfonso Lopez characterizes the report as absurd, and says that it was customary for the Spanish colonels to keep the regimental arms at their homes, where they could be accessible to the soldiers in case of need. Senor Lopez said that he knew of many such officers' houses that had not yet been searched, and he believed that he could collect in forty-eight hours many more arms and probably obtain 10,000 rounds of ammunition.

La Patria, one of the best edited papers in Havana, comes out to day with an editorial strongly endorsing the American administration. Its utterances are regarded as presenting the best thought of the thinking element of the community.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The Tribune to morrow will say: "It was learned last evening that a majority of members of the standing committee of the Diocese of New York are opposed to the ordination of Dr. Briggs. This committee is the bishop's advisory council, and is the representative body of the diocese, being chosen by the annual diocesan convention, and being made up of both priests and laymen."

THE RICHMOND COUNTERFEITERS.

Defendants Held for Trial in Default of Bail, by the U. S. Court.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RICHMOND, VA., May 10.—The preliminary examinations of George and Carlos Fasi—father and son—charged with passing counterfeit silver dollars and half-dollars on merchants and others in this city last Friday, was held before United States Commissioner Flagenheimer this morning. It was claimed that the coins were bought in New York, and Police Sergeant Cosby repeated a statement made to him by the boy, in which he took the whole blame on himself. The boy said he gave his father $10 to buy the coin. In default of bail the prisoners were held.

Mrs. Madeline Fasi, who was held as a suspicious character, was discharged, there being no incriminating evidence against her.

FILIPINO ATTACK ON SAN FERNANDO.

Met and Repulsed by the Montana Regiment With Very Small Loss.

ONLY A PRIVATE WOUNDED.

Filipinos Massing Their Forces—MacArthur Confident That He Can Hold the City—U. S. Commission and Its Work—Filipino Congress.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

MANILA, May 10, 10.15 A. M.—The Filipino General Mascardo's army inspired by wine taken from the store houses of Barcolor and by the General's oratory, on Monday evening attacked San Fernando. There was tremendous yelling and a great expenditure of cartridges by the rebels, but very little result.

General Mascardo holds the outskirts of Barcolor, west of the rail road. In front of his position are the Kansas and Montana regiments, which occupy trenches that the Filipinos built in anticipation of an attack from the direction of the sea.

During the afternoon of Monday General Mascardo, with a large retinue of officers, rode along the lines, frequently stopping to harangue his warriors. At dusk a detachment of rebels rushed towards the outposts of the Montana regiment, but were met by a hot fire from the Montana regiment's line. The insurgents, from trenches nearly three miles long, responded. After an hour's firing during which one private soldier of the Montana regiment was wounded, the insurgents subsided, although they kept up a scattering fire throughout the night.

Luna Massing His Troops.

Prisoners who were brought in to the American lines said that General Mascardo distributed barrels of wine among his soldiers, telling them that he expected them to capture the city of San Fernando. The trenches undoubtedly saved the Americans from heavy losses, bullets falling thick about them during the engagement.

General Luna is massing his army east of the railway, bringing up troops by train loads in sight of the American lines. The country between San Fernando and Calumpit is filling up with natives, who profess great friendship toward the Americans, but who are suspected by many of sympathy with the insurrection.

A Filipino connected with the American hospital corps was killed, it is supposed by amigos.

Gunboats Shelling the Jungle.

The army "tin-clad" gunboats De Bay, Laguna and Cavedonga, under command of Captain Grant, steamed up the Rio Grande to Calumpit to day, clearing the entire country of rebels from the bay upward. When the vessels reached Macabebe, about a thousand of the inhabitants of the place assembled on the banks of the river, cheering the expedition lustily. Captain Grant was given an ovation when he went ashore. Many of the Macabebes expressed themselves as being anxious to enter the American service for the campaign against the Tagala.

The United States transports Pueblo and Pennsylvania sailed for home to day by way of Nagasaki. The transports Charles Nelson and Cleveland will leave on Thursday and Friday.

The Filipino Congress.

Reports received from the insurgent lines, which, however, have not been confirmed, say that a meeting of the Filipino Congress has been held at San Isidro. There was no quorum present, but in spite of this fact some business was transacted. The reports add that although those who attended were mostly partisans of Aguinaldo a strong desire for peace was expressed.

Major General MacArthur will probably remain in San Fernando until fresh troops can be forwarded to him from this city to replace some of the volunteers who have become exhausted from the long campaign. Filipino riflemen to the number of eight thousand are entrenched on three sides of Barcolor. The Americans, however, are fully able to hold the city, if Monday's attack was a specimen of the enemy's fighting ability.

The U. S. Commission.

The United States Philippine Commission has been considering a provincial constitution for the island of Negros, which was framed by Colonel Smith and leading citizens. It is largely modeled after the constitution of California.

While it has many good points, the commission will probably recommend a uniform government for all the provinces. This constitution, it is intended, will give the natives self government co-operating with the military regime. Work upon the constitution has been apportioned to the several members of the Commission. The report of President Schurman will give special attention to national, provincial and municipal government, Colonel Chas. Denby will consider the organization of courts, and Prof. D. C. Worcester will investigate tribal, physical and commercial features of the islands. All the members of the commission are consulting with resident experts.

AMERICAN COAL.

The French Government Making Inquiries With a View to Its Adoption for the Navy.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The French government is making inquiries as to American coal, with a view of adopting it for the use of the French navy. To this end the minister of marine in the cabinet has instructed Lieutenant DeFaramond, the naval attache of the French embassy here, to examine the American coals which are now in use on American warships. Lieutenant DeFaramond has completed his inquiries and is now preparing a favorable report to the French admiralty. The officer visited Norfolk and Philadelphia and examined the practical uses of the kinds most used by the navy. He also conferred with Admiral Bradford, of the bureau of equipment, and learned the advantage which in the opinion of the Navy Department the Americans coals bossess. Lieutenant De Faramond's observations led him to the conclusion that the American coals make a slight percentage more smoke, but that they have less ash and clinker than the Cardiff coal, which is the standard the world over.

The residence of Dr. L. C. Bagwell, near Dalton, Ga., was burned early yesterday. Dr. Bagwell, his three children and their negro housekeeper were burned to death. It is supposed a lamp which Dr. Bagwell had on a table near his bed exploded.

Trained Show Dogs.

"Considering the investment, trained dogs are one of the most profitable attractions in the vaudeville line," said an old time showman, here with one of the current theatrical companies. "I suppose there are at least 12 or 15 troupes of them scattered over the country," he continued, "and the good ones easily average a couple of hundred a week and expenses. As there are no salaries to pay for the dogs and no hotel bills for anybody except the proprietor and one keeper the returns are rather handsome. Nowadays they have the business down to such a fine point that the sudden death of any of the animals can be readily remedied by telegraphing to New York, where several men make a specialty of keeping standard trick dogs in stock.

"A dog troupe usually consists of five performers, one of which is a star. The star probably costs $150 and the others about $50 apiece. Mongrels of no intrinsic worth are generally selected for training purposes, because they learn as quickly as the thoroughbreds and if anything happens to them the loss is so much lighter. There is a standard series of tricks which they are taught to do, so that one can easily replace another, and a little ingenuity on the part of the showman supplies the variety to the programme."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Ancient Chains.

In an interesting article on the subject of chains an English writer points to the fact that notwithstanding the frequent mention of chain in the Bible the article is comparatively new. The same author says:

"Some authorities give the Britons credit for originating the cable chain because Julius Cæsar is recorded as having been unable to cut the cables of the Gaul's vessels, 'as they were made of iron.' This may have been a chain in the present acceptation of the term, but it is doubtful, because the first patent for chainmaking was obtained in England in 1634 by a blacksmith named Philip White. The patent was for 14 years, and in consideration of it White had to pay £5 in lawful money yearly 'at the Exchequer, Westminster, att the Feast of the Blessed Virgyn and Saint Michell the Archangell by even and equal process.

"His patent is described as follows 'A way for the wearing of shipps with iron chaynes by finding out the true heating (pre)pareing and tempering of Lyron for that (pur)pose and that he hath nowe attayned to the true vse of the said chaynes and that the same wilbe for the great saveing of cordage and safety of shippers and will redound to good of our Comon Wealth.'"

Early French Theaters.

The French theater owes its origin to the religious exhibitions given by the pilgrims on their return from Palestine. At these exhibitions the pilgrims gave an account of the Holy Land and recited their own adventures. They were afterward imitated by those who had never been to the Holy Land. To these succeeded dramatic representations of subjects taken from the new text, which, being forbidden by the provost of Paris, the priests of France invited the king to be present at an exhibition to prove that they were calculated to excite religious feelings.

The building in which those plays were produced was divided into three scaffoldings—the highest represented paradise, the second the world and the lowest, which was in the form of a dragon's head, represented hell. The only entrance to the two upper scaffoldings was through the dragon's head.

The actors never left the stage, even to change their dress, and the plays were so long as to require several days for their completion. At the close of each evening the audience was invited to return until the whole were finished, sometimes 40 nights.

She Thought He Was Dead.

Maginnis had been ill for some time, and, like a great many invalids, he was somewhat irritable, and when things failed to meet his approval the next unfortunate who came within range was pretty apt to be reminded of it in a way far more forcible than polite. He lingered in this condition for several weeks, daily growing weaker, but still holding his own sufficiently to make things lively and more or less interesting for those about him.

Finally one day when the family doctor called he met the long suffering Mrs. Maginnis coming out of the sickroom, and, rubbing his hands, he cheerily remarked: "Ah, good morning, Mrs. Maginnis! How is our patient today?"

"It's dead the poor mon is, O'im afther thinkin, Hivin rist his sowl!" was the resigned reply.

"You think he is dead? Don't you know whether he is or not?" demanded the doctor.

"Not fer shure," responded Mrs. Maginnis briskly, "but thin he bethrays ivery symptom of it. I wint into his room jist now, an he didn't t'row anything at me!"—London Tit-Bits.

All He Craved.

The proprietor of the restaurant had just issued a new advertisement intended to call attention to a reduction in rates. After quoting the prices of various articles to conclusively demonstrate the fact that everything was cheap he added at the bottom of the advertisement, "Bread, butter and potatoes free."

He knows better now. If he had to do it over again, he would word it a little differently, and all because a solemn looking man came in one day and after taking his place at a table pointed to the advertisement and asked:

"Is that on the square?"

"Certainly," replied the waiter.

"Then give me some bread, butter and potatoes," said the man.

"Yes, sir. What else?" asked the waiter.

"Nothing else," replied the man. "That's all that's free, isn't it?"—Chicago Post.

The Soleman Scotchman.

A Scottish parson was attending a funeral in his own churchyard, says a writer in Longman's Magazine. The service over, and dust given to dust, the green sod smoothed down over the narrow bed, the company departed. But a worthy man remained behind and approached the parson with a solemn face, as though for serious talk.

"Din ye ken what I aye think at a funeral?" Many serious reflections have come to one there, and the clergyman expected some befitting thought.

"No. What is it you always think?"

The answer was, "I aye think I'm desperate gledd it's no me." The incumbent of that parish was mortified.

Wanted His Money's Worth.

"Have you any choice as to the wedding march?" asked the church organist.

"The wedding march?" echoed the father of the bride.

"Yes; the march that is played when the bridal procession moves down the aisle. Which one would you prefer—Mendelssohn's or the march from 'Lohengrin?'"

"Any difference in the expense?"

"Oh, no!"

"Then play the one that's the longest."—Chicago Tribune.
